I asked Captain Cook which way he was going round, it being necessary for me to know on account of changing the battery below, shifting from one side to the other. He answered that he was going with port helm. I gave the neces-sary orders on deck and went below. "As I arrived in the cabin after the Officers on Board Admiral's five-inch gun was fired for the last time on the nort side, and the starboard gue took up the fire immediately. The starboard buttery was then engaged for the rest of teh action. The range at the lime we turned, as far as I can rem was about 1,300 yards, although I have a recollection of 1,100 yards being sent to me once. As to the position of the enemy, they were on the port bow outside of the harbor when we made the turn with the port belm. At the end of the turn, they were on our starboard beam and quarter with one of them a little amead." Mr. Rayner: "What time was it when the Colon ran ashore?"
